Dr. Groman,

Thank you so much for allowing me to observe your course today (EDFN 202 Teaching and Learning Processes). Not only did I find the class to be well-planned out and informative, I found that it adequately addressed my own research question regarding mindfulness practices of higher education faculty, and mindful leadership in general. To me, I could see that the most important thing that you want for your group is to get them to apply what they've learned, consider how it can be used in a classroom, and to visualize themselves as leaders within their own classrooms.

I could see that they have experience with the lesson plan format AU uses, and I observed instruction on an Annotated Bibliography on Classroom Management. They seemed to be making the connection between this assignment and what their classroom management plan will be when they are teaching. I understand that the university is doing a focus on Writing/Communication, so the deep focus on APA format is addressing this need specifically.

Sincerely,
